Excerpt from History of the Society of Descendants of Robert Bartlet of Plymouth, Massachusetts: Incorporated December 11, 1909 History is a stern mistress; she exacts the best: she demands the truth and nothing but the truth. When false entries are made upon her scroll, either by intention or through lack of that qualification which forever stamps the real historian, such entries are fortunately in the long run doomed to fall from her record. In no way is history more sure of perpetuation than in careful genealogy. Therefore, this country owes a debt of gratitude to the genealogist, and should encourage in every possible way the formation of genealogical societies. Many are the sins of the average genealogist; many the crimes committed against truth by those whose work is careless and inadequate, through omission as well as commission; but the greatest of these is the sin of inaccuracy. The active evil of incorrect statements far outstrips the passive evil of omission of facts. If I were to give advice to the aspirant for work in genealogical fields I should urge Festina lente (make haste slowly), for nothing can compensate for an inaccurate entry! Better, a thousand times, leave the page blank, whereon at some future day the trained genealogist may inscribe the truth, than place an error upon its virgin page, an error almost certain to be perpetuated and to lead the searcher after truth astray. History keeps alive the memory of those whose virtues it inscribes; the course of the nation which is the survival of the fittest, and holds it up for admiration and emulation. Likewise it stamps for all time that nation which has gone down in shame, like a star lost from the firmament, although the individual offender is in many cases forgotten. We deal in this report with the lives of our ancestors Robert Bartlet and Mary Warren his wife; their forbears and their posterity. The name of Bartelot or Barttelot, is of such antiquity, historians say, that it is shrouded in the mists of time. Robert Bartlet of Massachusetts came of a long and honorable line. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. I'm super hyped about the VR, but you obviously knew that already because of my last blogpost. There were a few hiccups because I ordered it online and I was working during the time it came. I stressed, freaked, jumped and finally gave up on the thought I got to play on the day it came out. But luck was on my side and when I got home, 20 minutes later the VR glasses arrived! In this post I will take you with me on my first experience with virtual reality. Was it as awesome as I hoped? Or is nauseating and not really my cup of tea? Read and find out!
