

Learn Chinese from Newspapers: Quasi-advanced Chinese Newspaper and Periodicals Reading (Vol.2) (Chinese Edition)

This book is compiled by Wu Chengnian, an associate professor in the School of College Chinese Culture, Beijing Normal University, accompanied by Vol.1 published. Before the compilation of the textbook, 149 foreign students at the advanced level were surveyed through a questionnaire about their interested topics in newspapers and periodicals. Those relatively interesting topics were preferred for the textbook. Given its timeliness and stability, authentic language materials from Chinese periodicals and websites in 2005 were chosen for the textbook. This textbook is comparable in difficulty with strong practical language points to help students make use of phrases and sentence patterns in periodicals and newspapers and understand synonym differentiation and analysis and word formation, empathizing with the recurrence of new words and controlling words out of the outline. The training in the book focuses on reading competence. Every lesson is accompanied by a word list in four languages, easy for those foreign students whose mother tongue is Japanese, Korean, or English to take advantage of the book.

Welcome to the blog of Joan le Grande. I'm changing the blog to English so forgive me the Dutch articles before. I already translated a few, keeping it up! Anyway, stay tuned for lifestyle articles and reviews about games or other nerdy stuff. Enjoy! I'm super hyped about the VR, but you obviously knew that already because of my last blogpost. There were a few hiccups because I ordered it online and I was working during the time it came. I stressed, freaked, jumped and finally gave up on the thought I got to play on the day it came out. But luck was on my side and when I got home, 20 minutes later the VR glasses arrived! In this post I will take you with me on my first experience with virtual reality. Was it as awesome as I hoped? Or is nauseating and not really my cup of tea? Read and find out!
