

Notes on the Ancestry of the Children of Joseph Smith Harris and Delia Silliman Brodhead (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Notes on the Ancestry of the Children of Joseph Smith Harris and Delia Silliman Brodhead To my Children: I have undertaken the work of making a permanent record of the persons from whom you are descended, because it seems to me desirable that you and those who may follow you should know as much of your origin as can now be ascertained. It seemed necessary that I should do this, because no other person of my generation was sufficiently interested to undertake it, and because I felt that almost all knowledge of our family history, except that which has been reduced to writing, must pass away with the generation next older than mine. My investigations commenced in 1874, when several of my mothers family were yet living who had held frequent and intimate intercourse with their grandmother, Mrs. Colonel Frazer, whose recollections of revolutionary times were clear and full, and who had great knowledge of the traditions of her family. Much of what she said was written out by them, and the manuscript is now in my possession. These and the great stores of papers of her ancestors, the Taylors, are the chief authorities for her family history. The taste for antiquarian research, which these conversations and papers stimulated in Mrs. Frazers grandchildren, led also to the collection and preservation of everything that related to the history of several of the other branches of my mothers family; and an inquiry into the history of the Parrys, made about forty years ago to discover the heirs to a supposed English estate, produced full records of that line of her ancestry. In my fathers family, the generation next older than mine had mostly died before I undertook this study, but my father, who spent most of his life at the old Chester County homestead, and who was the custodian of all the old family papers, left sufficient documentary evidence to form a basis for further research. I interviewed several of the older members of that family, and procured some information from them, but they had not done much to preserve the family records. Both my father's family and my mother's have always lived within thirty miles of Philadelphia, and this permanence of abode has kept the family papers together. Welcome to the blog of Joan le Grande. I'm changing the blog to english so forgive me the dutch articles before. I already translated a few, keeping it up! Anyway, stay tuned for lifestyle articles and reviews about games or other nerdy stuff. Enjoy! Categories Comics Games Playstation 4 Wii U Lifestyle Posted by Joan le Grande in Games, Playstation 4 Leave a comment Tagsexperience, first look, Games, Playstation 4, Playstation VR review, ps4 VR review, virtual reality YES YES YES. I'm super hyped about the VR, but you obviously knew that already because of my last blogpost. There were a few hiccups because I ordered it online and I was working during the time it came. I stressed, freaked, jumped and finally gave up on the thought I got to play on the day it came out. But luck was on my side and when I got home, 20 minutes later the VR glasses arrived! In this post I will take you with me on my first experience with virtual reality. Was it as awesome as I hoped? Or is nauseating and not really my cup of tea? Read and find out!
