Excerpt from A Century and a Half of Pittsburg and Her People, Vol. 4: Genealogical Memoirs of the Leading Families of Pittsburg and Vicinity, Compiles Under the Editorial Supervision of John W. Jordan, LL. D. Of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania George Reynolds, who holds an enviable reputation among the members of the legal profession, being considered one of the ablest attorneys now practicing at the bar in the city of Pittsburg, Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, owes his entire success to his own unaided efforts and the ambition which dominated him. He is a member of an honored family of the state of Pennsylvania, but having had the misfortune to lose his father when he was but one month old he was early obliged to take an active part in the struggle for existence, and is in the fullest sense of the word a self-made man. George P. Reynolds, father of George E. Reynolds, was a resident of Northumberland county, Pennsylvania, and after his marriage settled upon a farm and was actively engaged in agriculture. He was also engaged in threshing for the neighboring farmers, and was considered a wide-awake business man. At the time of the building of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad he became one of the contractors to furnish the ties necessary for the building of the road in that section of the country. He was in the midst of these contracting obligations when he was killed, in March, 1876. The settling of these unfinished contracts left his widow and children in financially embarrassed circumstances, and they were all obliged to commence the battle of life at an early age. George P. Reynolds married Rebecca Dreisbach, daughter of a farmer near Turbotville, Northumberland county, Pennsylvania, and they had children: Daniel H., a hardware merchant in Milton, Pennsylvania; Elizabeth, married Charles Moser, a merchant of Watsontown, Pennsylvania; William N., a hardware merchant in Turbotville, Pennsylvania; Augustus, retired merchant of the same place, and George E., the subject of this sketch. George E. Reynolds, fourth son and fifth and youngest child of George P. and Rebecca (Dreisbach) Reynolds, was born in Turbotville, Northumberland county, Pennsylvania, February 28, 1876. He was but a few weeks of age when his father met his death, and was compelled to assist to the extent of his childish ability in the support of the household almost from his infancy. At the age of nine years he was placed with his uncle, Daniel Dreisbach, a neighboring farmer, to assist in the work of the farm, remaining with him for two years, during which time he received as payment his board and clothes. During the following year he worked for a man named Christopher Koons, from whom he received two dollars and fifty cents per month for a part of the year, and five dollars per month for the remainder. Welcome to the blog of Joan le Grande. I'm changing the blog to english so forgive me the dutch articles before. I already translated a few, keeping it up! Anyway, stay tuned for lifestyle articles and reviews about games or other nerdy stuff. Enjoy! Categories Comics Games Playstation 4 Wii U Lifestyle Posted by Joan le Grande in Games, Playstation 4 Leave a comment Tagsexperience, first look, Games, Playstation 4, Playstation VR review, ps4 VR review, viraal reality YES YES YES. I'm super hyped about the VR, but you obviously knew that already because of my last blogpost. There were a few hiccups because I ordered it online and I was working during the time it came. I stressed, freaked, jumped and finally gave up on the thought I got to play on the day it came out. But luck was on my side and when I got home, 20 minutes later the VR glasses arrived! In this post I will take you with me on my first experience with virtual reality. Was it as awesome as I hoped? Or is nauseating and not really my cup of tea? Read and find out!
