Excerpt from Public Documents of the State of Connecticut: January Session, 1886 The fiscal year formerly ended on the thirtieth day of November; and the reports of the various departments and officers of the government were not required to be made before the following January. Consequently it was possible and customary for those reports to present detailed statements of the operations of the several departments and institutions of the State for the period of one year ending on the last day of November immediately preceding the January Session of the General Assembly, while, at the same time, they disclosed the condition of those departments and institutions respectively on that date. At the last Session an Act was passed providing that the fiscal year for all departments should end on the thirtieth day of June, and requiring that all the reports which had previously been made annually on or before the first day of the January Session should thereafter be made, returned, and printed on or before the first day of November. I'm super hyped about the VR, but you obviously knew that already because of my last blogpost. There were a few hiccups because I ordered it online and I was working during the time it came. I stressed, freaked, jumped and finally gave up on the thought I got to play on the day it came out. But luck was on my side and when I got home, 20 minutes later the VR glasses arrived! In this post I will take you with me on my first experience with virtual reality. Was it as awesome as I hoped? Or is nauseating and not really my cup of tea? Read and find out!
