Excerpt from Report of the Proceedings of the Reunion of the Bassett Family Association of America: Held at Samoset House Plymouth, Mass., September Sixteenth, 1898

The second of the Bassett Family Association of America was held at the Samoset House, Plymouth, Mass., September 16, 1898. Dinner was served to ninety members of the Association and their friends. After the board was cleared, the post-prandial exercises were entered upon. At the request of President Dickerman M. liassett, Mr. Abbot Bassett, of Boston, acted in the dual capacity of presiding officer and toastmaster. Toastmaster. - Is Mr. Bassett in the room? Many Voices. - Yes! yes! Toastmaster. - If that be so, he is requested to come to order and to persuade his wife, his sister and his aunt to do likewise. Our President is a very bashful man. So bashful, in fact, that he cant drive speech past the blushes on his cheeks when he rises to speak. He looked about him to find a man who was a stranger to diffidence and he thinks he found him in me. That is why I am here. This is a joyful occasion. Good Mother Nature has given us a beautiful day, the skies shine brightly upon us, and the earth has put on its mantle of green, dotted with the gorgeous golden rod of autumn. In the grand symphony of our rejoicing we hear no discordant note. We are here in the spirit of pure patriotism. The generally accepted definition of patriotism is love of country, but to my mind the word has a broader and a more comprehensive meaning. It is a love that includes not only ones country, but familiar scenes and places, congenial friends, home and its institutions, and we feel to-day that it embraces pride of race and family. Like a mans love for a woman, patriotism may be true or false, ennobling or degrading, salutary or ruinous, according as the object be worthy or unworthy. The Bassetts have much to be proud of in what is known of their ancestry, and they have nothing to be ashamed of. The best blood of England flows in Bassett veins, and the pages of English history contain much that tells of worthy deeds and grand achievement on the part of those who bear our name. We are all here for purposes of our own. Some of you come with well established lines of ancestry leading back to William of Plymouth, to William of Lynn, or to John of New Haven, and your bosom swells with pride as you point to the record. Others, like myself, go back to grandmothers not at all remote, and we are here to establish a record if it be possible. Welcome to the blog of Joan le Grande. I'm changing the blog to english so forgive me the dutch articles before. I already translated a few, keeping it up! Anyway, stay tuned for lifestyle articles and reviews about games or other nerdy stuff. Enjoy! Categories Comics Games Playstation 4 Wii U Lifestyle Posted by Joan le Grande in Games, Playstation 4 Leave a comment Tagsexperience, first look, Games, Playstation 4, Playstation VR review, ps4 VR review, virtual reality YES YES YES. I'm super hyped about the VR, but you obviously knew that already because of my last blogpost. There were a few hiccups because I ordered it online and I was working during the time it came. I stressed, freaked, jumped and finally gave up on the thought I got to play on the day it came out. But luck was on my side and when I got home, 20 minutes later the VR glasses arrived! In this post I will take you with me on my first experience with virtual reality. Was it as awesome as I hoped? Or is nauseating and not really my cup of tea? Read and find out!
