

Stress and Prosodic Structure in Greek (TRAVAUX DE L'INSTITUT DE LINGUISTIQUE DE LUND Book 22)

This is a phonetic study of stress and prosodic structure in Greek. Prosody is how we use temporal, dynamic and tonal variations in speech to convey linguistic (as well as paralinguistic) information. Word prosody is used to distinguish words with different meanings (morphological function); phrase and sentence prosody are used to group lexical elements together (syntactic function) and to divide the utterance into more or less prominent parts in accordance with the speaker's/listener's idea as to what has greater or lesser importance (semantic function). The study falls naturally into four parts. After a short introduction, the first part of the study outlines the prosodic phonology of Greek, and rules describing the distribution of the prosodic categories of word, enclitic and sentence stress are introduced. In the second part, the acoustic correlates of duration, intensity and voice fundamental frequency for word, enclitic and sentence stress are investigated as well as the relation between prosody and syntax/semantics. In the third part, subglottal pressure, as a physiological correlate of word and sentence stress, and its relation to the acoustic correlates of word and sentence stress is investigated. Finally, in the fourth part, the perceptual correlates of word and enclitic stress are examined and the perceptual relevance of voice fundamental frequency for stress distinctions is discussed at length. At the end, the study is summarized and conclusions are presented.

Welcome to the blog of Joan le Grande. I'm changing the blog to English so forgive me the Dutch articles before. I already translated a few, keeping it up! Anyway, stay tuned for lifestyle articles and reviews about games or other nerdy stuff. Enjoy! I'm super hyped about the VR, but you obviously knew that already because of my last blogpost. There were a few hiccups because I ordered it online and I was working during the time it came. I stressed, freaked, jumped and finally gave up on the thought I got to play on the day it came out. But luck was on my side and when I got home, 20 minutes later the VR glasses arrived! In this post I will take you with me on my first experience with virtual reality. Was it as awesome as I hoped? Or is nauseating and not really my cup of tea? Read and find out!
