

The Journal of Classical and Sacred Philology, 1857, Vol. 3 (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The Journal of Classical and Sacred Philology, 1857, Vol. 3 We now come (pp. 69 75) to Mr Laws observations on Livys narrative, and to his strictures on my interpretation of it. In pp. 70, 71, the Critic deals with the difficult passage, cum jam Alpes peteret, &c., in which he is fortunate enough to find no error, but not so fortunate in making out its correctness. In his exposition of my own views, I have not discovered any likeness to what they really are. The words, cum jam Alpes peteret, are commonly construed, he says, when he was now standing with his back to the Isere, looking due south, and thinking of the Alps. Mr Ellis, evidently apprehending this to be their meaning declares that a turn to the left would take Hannibal up the Isere without touching the Tricastini. I believe it is only in Mr Laws copy of my treatise that the words up the Isere are to be found. (See Treatise, p. 134.) Had he not there met with them, he could not possibly have imagined that, when I spoke of a march previously directed towards the north being resumed, I could have supposed Hannibal to be looking due south when on the point of turning ad laevam. I trust also, for the commentators sake, that Mr Law is mistaken about this being the usual construction of cum jam Alpes peteret. The possibility of such a strange interpretation certainly never crossed my mind. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Welcome to the blog of Joan le Grande. I'm changing the blog to english so forgive me the dutch articles before. I already translated a few, keeping it up! Anyway, stay tuned for lifestyle articles and reviews about games or other nerdy stuff. Enjoy! I'm super hyped about the VR, but you obviously knew that already because of my last blogpost. There were a few hiccups because I ordered it online and I was working during the time it came. I stressed, freaked, jumped and finally gave up on the thought I got to play on the day it came out. But luck was on my side and when I got home, 20 minutes later the VR glasses arrived! In this post I will take you with me on my first experience with virtual reality. Was it as awesome as I hoped? Or is nauseating and not really my cup of tea? Read and find out!
