

Stemmata Craufurdeania: Of the Annals of the Noble Family of Crawford (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Stemmata Craufurdeania: Of the Annals of the Noble Family of Crawford Arms: (Craufurd of Craufurdland, County Ayr; Braehead, Midlothian, and descendants of Crawford lineage). Gules, a fess ermine. Crest: A marble pillar supporting a mans heart ppr. Motto: Stant innixa Deo. The recent discovery in an old illuminated manuscript at the British Museum, in the Cotton Collection, of the Arms of Stephen, third Earl of Richmond, (gules a bend ermine), died 1104, and their close similitude to the Coat borne by the Craufurds, coupled with other corroborative circumstances, has left absolutely no doubt that the old Earls of Richmond and the ancient houses of Craufurd, Crawford, and Crawford sprang from a common progenitor. The most remote ancestor of the Craufurds in Scotland was Reginald, fourth and youngest son of Alan, the fourth Earl of Richmond (d. 1146). He accompanied David I. to the North when that Prince entered his kingdom, followed, says Chalmers, by a thousand Norman knights, whom he provided for and established in his dominions for their civilization and protection. Reginald received extensive grants of land in Strath Cluyd, or Clydesdale, and while there resident adopted for his name Craufurd being called after the name of his estate which was one of the largest baronies in Scotland and of some three or four hundred merk lands in extent. He may have been that sterling warrior whom tradition says was signalized at an engagement at the water of Cree, in Galloway, by discovering a ford which gave great advantage to his party. So, some tell us, he got the name of Cree-ford or Crawford. The writers are inclined to agree on this statement and associate with it the fact that in Gaelic Craufurd signifies The passage of blood. John, the eldest of Reginalds two sons, established his residence at what subsequently became known as Johns Town, in the Parish of Craufurd, and left issue -Galfredus de Craufurd, a man of great weight in his community, who ranked with the Magnates Scoti?, and was a frequent witness to the State documents of King William the Lion. His son, Galfredus, died 1202, and left a son -John de Craufurd, who was buried at Melrose Abbey, 1248, and his estates divided between his two daughters. Welcome to the blog of Joan le Grande. I'm changing the blog to english so forgive me the dutch articles before. I already translated a few, keeping it up! Anyway, stay tuned for lifestyle articles and reviews about games or other nerdy stuff. Enjoy! Categories Comics Games Playstation 4 Wii U Lifestyle Posted by Joan le Grande in Games, Playstation 4 Leave a comment Tagsexperience, first look, Games, Playstation 4, Playstation VR review, ps4 VR review, virtual reality YES YES YES. I'm super hyped about the VR, but you obviously knew that already because of my last blogpost. There were a few hiccups because I ordered it online and I was working during the time it came. I stressed, freaked, jumped and finally gave up on the thought I got to play on the day it came out. But luck was on my side and when I got home, 20 minutes later the VR glasses arrived! In this post I will take you with me on my first experience with virtual reality. Was it as awesome as I hoped? Or is nauseating and not really my cup of tea? Read and find out!
